FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

Plaintiff, YOLANDA MCDONALD ("McDonald") by and through her undersigned counsel, GIANNA SCATCHELL, ESQ. of DISPARTI LAW GROUP complains as follows against the Defendants, KAREN YARBROUGH, LAUREN RAYMOND, ESQ., COOK COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE, and COOK COUNTY (collectively "Defendants").

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. The Plaintiff files this lawsuit to seek redress for the infringement of her civil rights following her attempt to expose her supervisor's misconduct and report suspicious payroll practices beyond her immediate superiors due to their unresponsiveness. In retaliation, the Plaintiff endured fabricated reprimands, unwarranted meddling in her supervisory responsibilities, removal of her supervisory authority, exclusion from departmental meetings, coerced justification for her role as a supervisor, capricious referral to the Employee Assistance Program (EAP), and ultimately, a suspiciously-time termination rife with pretext.

PARTIES, JURISDICTION, AND VENUE

2. Plaintiff, Yolanda McDonald (“McDonald”) is an African American female who is 50 years old and was formerly employed as the Director of Human Resources with the Cook County Clerk’s Office. At all times relevant, McDonald was a resident of Cook County, Illinois.
3. Defendant Karen Yarbrough (“Yarbrough”) is a final policymaker and at all times relevant served as the chief executive officer for the Cook County Clerk’s Office. Yarbrough engaged in the conduct complained of while acting under the color of law. She is sued in her official and individual capacities.
4. Defendant Lauren Raymond, ESQ. (“Raymond”) was the Chief of Human Resources for the Cook County Clerk’s Office. She engaged in the conduct complained of while acting under the color of law and is sued in her official and individual capacities.
5. Yarbrough and Raymond are collectively referred to herein as the “Individual Defendants.”
6. Defendant Cook County (“County”) is and was at all relevant times a municipal corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois. At all relevant times, Cook County administered itself through various departments and offices, including the Cook County Clerk’s Office (“Clerk’s Office”).
7. Defendant Cook County Clerk’s Office (“Cook County Clerk’s Office” or “Clerk’s Office”) manages Suburban Cook County elections. The Clerk’s Office also oversees the countywide systems for birth, death, and marriage certificates for all of Cook County, including Chicago. The Clerk’s Office also manages Economic Disclosure and campaign finance report filing for all of Cook County.

8. Jurisdiction of this Court arises under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1337 and pursuant to the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, 29 U.S.C. § 621, et seq., as amended (“ADEA”), 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983, and 1988. See Levin v. Madigan, 692 F.3d 607 (2012) (holding that Section 1983 claims are not preempted by the ADEA).
9. Supplemental jurisdiction exists over the state law claims of IHRA and the Illinois Whistleblower’s Act pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367 because the state law counts are so related to the other claims in this action so as to form part of the same case or controversy.
10. Venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because the events and omissions giving rise to the claims herein have occurred in this judicial district, and because Defendants maintain places of operation within this judicial district.

EXHAUSTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE RELIEF

11. McDonald filed charges with the Illinois Department of Human Rights (“IDHR”) against Defendant Cook County Clerk’s Office (Charge No. 2021-CA-1505), which was cross-filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (“EEOC”)(Charge No. 21 BA 10730).
12. IDHR sent McDonald her right to sue letter on January 25, 2022.
13. Plaintiff received her Right to Sue notice from the EEOC charge on or about February 13, 2023.
14. In her charges, McDonald asserts that she was discriminated against and retaliated against because she engaged in certain protected activity. (Copy of the cross-filed IDHR/EEOC Right to Sue letters attached hereto as Group Exhibit 1).

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

15. Plaintiff is a highly qualified individual with a background in human resources.

16. She began working as the Human Resources Director for the Cook County Recorder's Office on May 1, 2017.
17. Plaintiff began working as the Director of Human Resources in the Clerk's Office on December 27, 2019.
18. The Clerk's Office provides government services in Cook County and also serves as the election authority for suburban Cook County, maintains real estate records as the County Clerk, maintains the County's Vital Records, calculates the tax rates to be used in the County's property tax bills, administers tax sales, and serves as the County Board of Commissioner.

The Toxic Culture at the Clerk's Office

19. Plaintiff reported to Lauren Raymond, ESQ. ("Raymond"), the Chief of Human Resources Department at the Cook County Clerk's Office.
20. Throughout March 2020 until she was terminated in December 2020, McDonald raised several payroll issues to Raymond who had "banned" McDonald from the payroll process.
21. Some of the payroll issues that McDonald raised concerns about include:
  - a. Employees who were not receiving paychecks;
  - b. Over 100 terminated, separated, or deceased employees that were still listed on the Clerk's payroll;
  - c. Employees who were on unpaid leaves or were collecting short-term disability pensions that were still receiving a paycheck;
  - d. Temporary election workers who were not receiving their paychecks or only receiving partial paychecks;
  - e. Some employees were not receiving their annual wage increases and cost of living ("COLA") increases because of a purported "wage freeze;" and

- f. Employees who had resigned were being paid personal days upon separation.
- 22. Despite being shut out from the payroll process, McDonald continued to receive inquiries from employees about payroll problems including improper overtime calculations and requests for paid time off, and not receiving their annual raises or cost of living increases.
- 23. McDonald was not able to investigate these matters because she did not have full access to the payroll system until August 13, 2020, so she raised these problems with Raymond.
- 24. The ongoing payroll issues caused tensions between Raymond and McDonald.
- 25. McDonald was the oldest employee in the human resources department.
- 26. Raymond, McDonald's Supervisor was only 39 years old.
- 27. Raymond would often make ageist remarks including that she has not had good working relationships with subordinates that are older than her.
- 28. Raymond provided McDonald with an example where she had a good working relationship with one of her subordinates who was older than her until Raymond became her supervisor because the subordinate supposedly did not like answering to a supervisor who was younger than her. The woman was involuntarily transferred or terminated.
- 29. McDonald also experienced various difficulties in working under Raymond including:
  - a. Refusing to adjust McDonald's pay grade from Grade 21 to Grade 23, which led to a pay disparity;
  - b. Repeatedly criticizing McDonald's work performance, while interfering with her job duties and preventing her from performing her supervisory duties as a director;
  - c. Refusing to act on a report McDonald submitted about improperly changed timecards and attendance policy violations;
  - d. Excluding her from trainings, meetings, and discussions about payroll discrepancies;

- e. Writing her up for working from home even though she had previously allowed McDonald to work from home following Covid-exposure;
  - f. Not providing her with a formal performance review as required by the handbook;
  - g. Admonishing her for contacting the legal department before “clearing” it with her;
  - h. Giving her erroneous write-ups and suspensions and being forced to go for a Mandatory EAP with no grounds to do so; and
  - i. Not being allowed to choose her own medical provider when she was arbitrarily referred to EAP.
30. On various dates, Plaintiff was subjected to disparaging comments made by Raymond including that she did not want to “get caught with her panties down” or telling McDonald that she acts like “[her] girlfriend that she could never make happy.”
31. McDonald attempted to meet with Raymond several times to address these issues, but Raymond discounted and dismissed Plaintiff’s concerns.
32. Raymond’s conduct unreasonably interfered with McDonald’s authority to manage, supervise, and discipline her subordinates and caused a hostile environment for McDonald.

Covid Outbreaks at the Clerk’s Office

33. Due to the Covid-19 Pandemic, the Human Resources staff was on a hybrid schedule where its employees worked from home or worked from the Clerk’s office depending on the day.
34. On or about August 9, 2020, the Clerk’s Office had one of many Covid-19 outbreaks.
35. The next day, on August 10, 2020, McDonald was to report to the Clerk’s Office for work.
36. As such, McDonald reported for work when about one hour into her shift, a temporary election employee knocked on her door and told her to leave the building because the Clerk’s Office was shut down due to a CoVid-19 outbreak.

37. Raymond never informed McDonald that the Clerk's Office was shut down even though she informed other employees not to come into work and even though she knew McDonald suffered from asthma.

Mounting Harassment by Raymond

38. McDonald asked Raymond why she never called her and stated that this was a preventable occurrence.

39. Raymond responded by calling McDonald and began yelling at her and ultimately hung up the phone.

40. McDonald reported this conversation to Yarbrough.

41. On August 12, 2020, McDonald was called into a meeting with the Deputy Clerk, Cedric Giles, after Yarbrough discovered that McDonald was trying to quit due to Raymond's ongoing harassment.

42. Giles instructed Raymond to apologize for her harassing behavior and asked McDonald not to quit.

43. On or about August 12, 2020, Yarbrough called McDonald after work hours to reiterate the discussion at the Giles' meeting, that Raymond's behavior was unacceptable, and that McDonald would be able to take on supervisory duties.

44. Raymond ultimately apologized to her for being unprofessional.

McDonald is Finally Granted Access to the Payroll System in August 2020

45. August 13, 2020, McDonald received an invite for a meeting entitled "Departmental Changes" from Raymond's personal email address.

46. Finally, on or about August 13, 2020, Raymond gave McDonald authority to do payroll and she began auditing and monitoring employee time and attendance as part of her duties.

47. McDonald reviewed timecard history for two of her subordinates, Jamerson and Twine, and discovered several payroll discrepancies including inappropriate punches for Twine, also that Twine's supervisor was listed as a temporary election worker, and that Jamerson was overstepping her boundaries by editing Twine's time card to add her missed punches when she arrived late.
48. On August 25, 2020, the comptroller's office emailed McDonald to confirm if several employees at the Clerk's office were overpaid.
49. McDonald notified Raymond about these payroll discrepancies, and on belief, Raymond did not investigate these issues.
50. Instead, Raymond responded by accusing McDonald of "attempting to sabotage her" by making her look bad for exposing the payroll problems.
51. Even though McDonald was supposed to be in a supervisory position, Raymond never informed McDonald's subordinates that they were supposed to report to her.
52. On August 16, 2020, McDonald was forced to justify her "vision" for the human resources department and why the human resources staff should report to her even though she was in a director position.
53. No other director had to justify his or her "vision" for their respective department nor did they have to explain why they should have employees report to them.
54. McDonald, again, emailed Yarbrough to inform her about the violative payroll conduct and Raymond's hostile behavior.

Election Department's Payroll Issues

55. On or about September 23, 2020, Shana Porter, manager in the election department, emailed Twine and asked her what her plan was to handle the election staff's "short checks."

56. Twine's reply email inadvertently included McDonald as Raymond deliberately excluded McDonald from the election staff's missing or short paychecks.
57. When McDonald tried to investigate this issue both Twine and Jamerson refused to give her information to investigate the matter.
58. When McDonald approached Raymond and Giles about this issue, Raymond threatened to write her up for "insubordination."
59. McDonald told Raymond in an email that she knew she was trying to fire her.
60. Giles told her that McDonald that you had no right to "question Raymond." Giles made it clear that he supported Raymond.
61. On October 8, 2020, McDonald requested the status on the payroll errors from several members of the Clerk's technology department.
62. McDonald continued to have meetings with the Clerk's technology department to rectify the ongoing payroll issues until the date of her termination.

McDonald's Investigates Twine's Continued Timecard Inconsistencies

63. On or October 19, 2020, McDonald reviewed Twine's timecard and discovered it was again replete with incomplete punches.
64. McDonald informed Raymond that Twine was repeatedly tardy, did not punch out for her lunch break, and was improperly editing her timecards.
65. McDonald directed Twine to explain the punch card inconsistencies and provide her compensatory reports, but Twine refused.
66. Pursuant to the Cook County Handbook, Twine should have been disciplined for excessive tardies (CC Handbook § 3 Time and Attendance).

67. Raymond dismissed McDonald's concern and did not allow McDonald to discipline Twine for violating the Clerk's Office's time and attendance policy or changing her timecard.

Another Covid-19 Outbreak

68. On October 26, 2020, the Clerk's Office had another Covid-19 outbreak and McDonald discovered that she was exposed.

69. On October 28, 2020, Raymond emailed McDonald and informed her that she was eligible to work from home.

From: Lauren Raymond (County Clerk) <Lauren.Raymond@cookcountyil.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 28, 2020 12:40 PM
To: Yolanda McDonald (County Clerk) <Yolanda.Mcdonald@cookcountyil.gov>
Subject: RE: Just to be clear

Only you and Kelly are eligible to work from home. Kelly does not play a role in payroll. YDRP

Kind Regards,

70. McDonald requested to work from home on October 29th and 30th because she had not yet received the results of her CoVid-19 test.

71. Raymond accused her of putting unnecessary pressure on the human resources department but ultimately approved her work from home request.

Comptroller's Investigation of Payroll Errors

72. On October 30, 2020, McDonald emailed Raymond, Yarbrough, Davis, Giles, and Samuel about the prior inquiry from the Comptroller's office regarding the perceived overpayments and requested instruction from them on how to proceed.

73. When no one responded, McDonald emailed the Comptroller's Office with documentation that at least $17,260.00 was overpaid to six employees before she took over the payroll.

McDonald's First Sham Write-Up

74. Raymond became irate because McDonald had violated Raymond's unofficial policy of "what happens in HR stays in HR."

75. On or about October 27, 2020, McDonald called and emailed Yarbrough and requested a meeting based on Raymond's continued harassment and ongoing payroll issues.
76. On belief, Davis made Yarbrough aware of these issues.
77. On October 30, 2020, Raymond issued McDonald her first write-up, but it was backdated to October 28, 2020.
78. The write-up was a sham. Raymond was attempting to thwart McDonald's protected activity by claiming that it was "unacceptable for [McDonald] to work from home during a payroll processing week for the entire week" even though she had approved McDonald's ability to work from home only two days before and also the Clerk's CoVid-19 exposure guidelines mandated that McDonald work from home after being exposed to CoVid-19.
79. Later that day, McDonald emailed Jamica Davis, Cedric Giles, and Monica Samuel to report feeling "ganged up" on by Raymond and her subordinates for putting rules in place for HR staff timecards, for being shut out from the current payroll process, for the errors with the current payroll process, and now being written up.
80. On October 30, 2020, McDonald met with Scott Kozlov to discuss the ongoing harassment and ongoing payroll issues, and he directed McDonald to contact the legal department.
81. On October 30, 2020, the Director, Human Rights and Ethics, Sisavanh Baker emailed McDonald and was concerned about the issues that McDonald had reported about Raymond.
82. McDonald's pre-investigation hearing was on November 2, 2020, and following a written summary of her write-up was issued a one-day suspension.
83. On November 2, 2020, Baker emailed McDonald, Kozlov, and Giles to provide them with a status on McDonald's complaint against Raymond.

From: Sisavanh Baker (County Clerk)
Sent: Monday, November 2, 2020 9:26 AM
To: Yolanda McDonald (County Clerk)
Cc: Scott Kozlov (County Clerk); Cedric Giles (County Clerk)
Subject: Re: hostile work environment

Yolanda,

I hope you are feeling better.

Please be aware that I have spoken to Lauren about your complaint. I did not get into the factual details of the harassment. My goal was to let her know that she should cease any kind of harassing behavior. She has indicated that she does not want you to feel harassed in any way and that she will continue to communicate with you via email and text. I found her response to very authentic.

If you have not already done so, please expedite your complaint to Scott so we can bring this situation to a conclusion. I am very concerned about the Office's ability to operate HR in a professional and efficient manner under the circumstances. I understand the pressures that HR is under right now given the Election tomorrow, the Assumption on December 1, and the pandemic but I hope that we can move forward in the best interest of the hardworking public.

Please feel free to contact me with further questions or concerns.

Sisavanh

84. On November 6, 2020, Raymond never informed McDonald about a basic training course on the payroll that the other employees of the department had participated in.

McDonald's Second Sham Write-up

85. On November 10, 2020, Raymond issued McDonald a second write-up based on McDonald for allegedly not taking her phone calls, which was backdated to October 30, 2020.

86. Indeed, Raymond could have, but did not, email McDonald's county-issued email address requesting a callback.

87. Worse still, the second write-up was based on the same set of facts as the first write-up. So, McDonald was being punished twice for the same purported behavior.

88. Raymond also included several pieces of irrelevant and biased language in the write-up that, were not true, and there was no reason whatsoever to include such statements in the disciplinary writeups except to pave the way for her termination.

89. Plaintiff avers that, after a reasonable opportunity for discovery, Raymond sought to rid her from the Human Resource department because of her age as evidenced by Raymond's comments about not being able to work with subordinates older than her.

90. After a reasonable opportunity for discovery, it will be shown that Raymond engaged in a pattern of targeting older staff with harassing and cajoling managerial tactics or nonsense disciplinary complaints to force them out and replace them with younger staff.

91. On November 11, 2020, McDonald called EAP to seek counseling on how to handle the pretextual write-ups and increasing tensions with Raymond.

Complaints to Defendant about Discrimination/Harassment and Retaliation by Defendant

92. On November 17, 2020, McDonald informed Koslov, Giles, and Baker that Raymond was creating a hostile work environment.

93. Upon receipt of the complaint, the aforementioned individuals had a duty to make any further inquiries into the facts supporting McDonald's claims of harassment and discrimination and to properly investigate such claims per Cook County's Employment Manual.

94. Each of the two negative evaluations provided to Plaintiff was false, distorted, or misleading.

95. On belief, each of them did little or nothing to investigate First Amended Complaint or correct the discrimination and harassment by Raymond.

Cook County's Arbitrary EAP Referral

96. Cook County provides an Employee Assistance Program ("EAP") to all county employees.

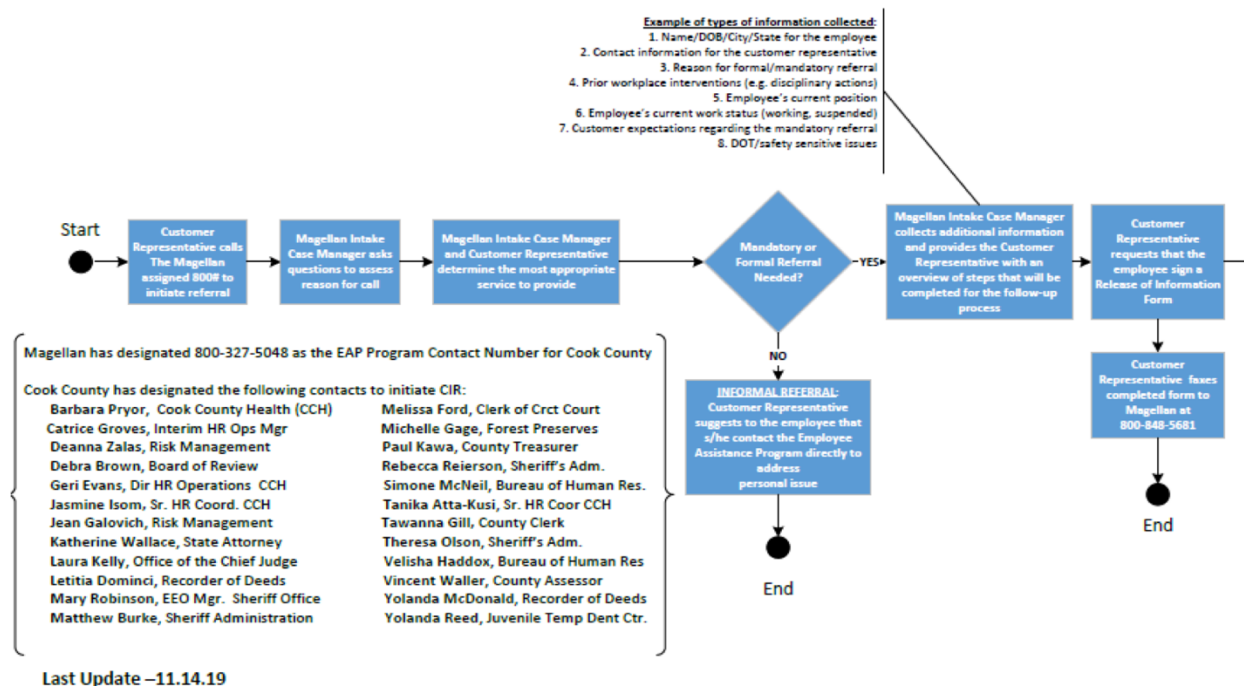

97. On belief, managers have three types of EAP referrals available: educational, informal, or mandatory (formal) referrals.

- a. Informal Referrals mean that an employee's participation is voluntary and that feedback will not be provided to Cook County's contact.

- b. Formal Referral means that an employee's participation is strongly suggested, but their employment is not dependent on contacting the EAP. Magellan provides one-time feedback to Cook County's contact.
- c. Mandatory Referral means that an employee's continued employment is contingent upon contacting the EAP. Magellan provides continual feedback to Cook County's contact regarding the employee's compliance with provider recommendations, and up to three (3) face-to-face sessions are available.

Workplace Support Flow Sheet

Cook County EAP Implementation
Workplace Support
Formal, Informal, and Mandatory Referrals

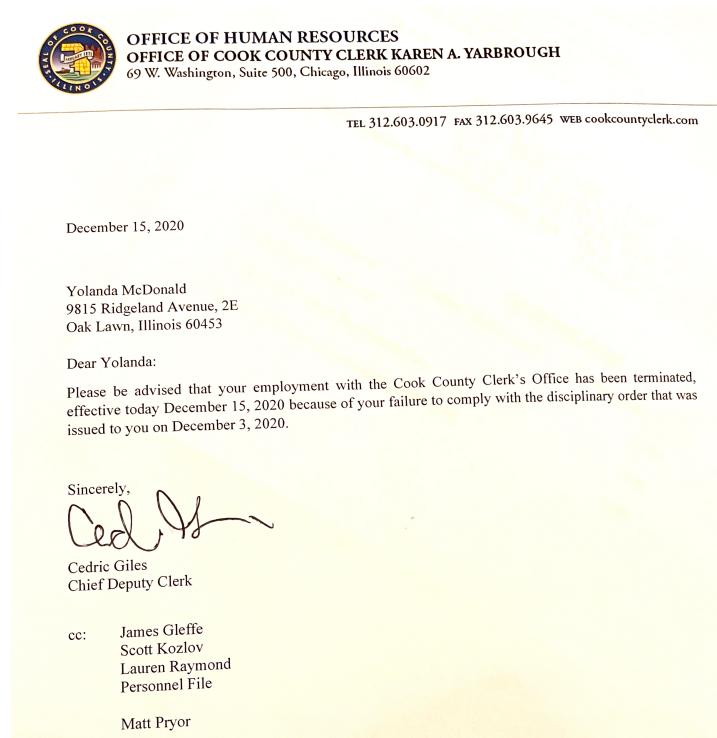

98. According to the Cook County WorkPlace Support HR Overview, “Mandatory Referrals to EAP” occur when an “[e]mployee has been determined to have a substance use disorder problem it is also used for a [sic] employee who comes forward to admit a substance abuse disorder or a mental health problem.”

99. The employee referred to mandatory EAP also has a choice to find their own provider or go through Magellan as the provider selected by Cook County for its employees.
100. On December 3, 2020, Kozlov referred McDonald to mandatory EAP but never informed her of the basis for the referral.
101. At no time did McDonald display or admit to any substance abuse or mental impairment.
102. Kozlov only directed McDonald to sign up and register within seven (7) days and sign the applicable consent and tender by December 11, 2020, by 4:30 pm.
103. McDonald informed Kozlov that she completed the tasks.
104. On or about December 14, 2020, McDonald emailed the legal department to verify the purported wage freeze.
105. James Gleffe, labor counsel for the Cook County Clerk, forwarded McDonald's email to Raymond who then forwarded it to McDonald with an angry message.
106. Approximately 30 minutes later, Raymond emailed McDonald to "coordinate with [her] before [she] send answers to anything of a legal nature."
107. McDonald then informed Gleffe that Raymond had forwarded his email to her and that she feared for her job because she reported yet another payroll issue to Raymond's supervisor.

Defendants Unlawfully Terminate McDonald

108. McDonald is familiar with how to properly refer an employer to EAP since she was the designated Cook County Contact for the Recorder of Deeds Office as shown above.
109. Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office also required McDonald to take an EAP training session to learn how to properly apply the Program county-wide to its employees.
110. The next day, Defendant Clerk's Office, through Giles, terminated McDonald.

111. Defendants discriminated against Plaintiff's age and retaliated against her for engaging in the aforementioned protected conduct by creating trumped-up, ginned up charges to justify firing her which consisted of not complying with a "disciplinary order" that was issued to her only 12 days before with little to no instruction.
112. The purpose of the EAP training was to educate the directors and supervisors on the ways to use EAP Program effectively and to prevent it from being used to discriminate, punish, or retaliate against employees.
113. On further belief, Scott Koslov never was trained in the EAP procedures and policies.
114. McDonald called Magellan and reviewed Kozlov's directives to them.
115. Magellan did not know what Kozlov meant by registration.

116. Casting additional doubt onto the veracity of the stated reason for termination, Defendant Yarbrough admitted to McDonald that Raymond's treatment of her was wrong and that her termination was improper.

117. Defendants failed to adhere to Cook County's progressive discipline standard by not taking certain corrective, disciplinary steps before terminating McDonald and firing her without giving her a pre-termination hearing.

118. Even if Plaintiff had committed the infractions listed as alleged in the termination letter Defendants had a long-standing policy that excused similar employees' behavior or much worse behavior.

119. The EAP Policy is not a "disciplinary measure," much less the extreme, drastic penalty of termination, as it implicates employees' rights to seek help for an impairment disability.

120. Magellan did not report McDonald as non-compliant.

121. On belief, McDonald's replacement is at least five (5) to 10 years younger than her.

Yarbrough's Knowledge, Counselling, and Involvement in McDonald's Employment

122. Yarbrough knew about McDonald improper termination and facilitated it, approved it, condoned it, or turned a blind eye toward it.

123. On December 24, 2020, McDonald emailed Yarbrough with a request for reinstatement.

124. Later in December 2020, Yarbrough instructed one of her employees to tell McDonald that if she wanted her job back, she had to file a claim with the Illinois Department of Human Rights Commission.

125. On or about May 12, 2021, Yarbrough invited McDonald over to her private home to discuss how McDonald could be reinstated.

126. Yarbrough admitted that she directed Davis to keep tabs on McDonald's IDHR charges.

127. Yarbrough further admitted that McDonald's termination was wrong and apologized for how she was treated, but further stated that it would be "political suicide" for her to rehire McDonald without the façade of the IDHR claim looking as if she was legally mandated to rehire McDonald.

128. On May 17, 2021, McDonald emailed Yarbrough's email to update the Clerk about the status of her IDHR claim.

129. Yarbrough responded to McDonald from both her personal and work emails as follows:

On May 19, 2021, at 1:01 PM, Karen Yarbrough (County Clerk) <Karen.Yarbrough@cookcountyil.gov> wrote:

130. Later in summer 2021, Yarbrough invited McDonald to her "Summer Soiree" as the Clerk's "special guest."

131. Despite Yarbrough's promises to McDonald, she was never reinstated to her position.

Yarbrough's History of Using Jobs as Leverage for Politics or Retaliation

132. Defendant Yarbrough has engaged in a policy, pattern, and practice of retaliating and condoning retaliation against employees or citizens who complain of protected class discrimination or report such misconduct.

133. For example, the Court declined to dismiss the case in Soto v. Yarbrough where Soto (former director of Human Resources at the Recorder's office) alleged that they discriminated and retaliated against her on the basis of her political affiliation.

134. Giles and Raymond did not want McDonald rehired with the Clerk's Office.
135. On belief, Yarbrough did not want to go against political donors like Giles, Raymond, and Gleffe who each have donated thousands of dollars to Karen Yarbrough's campaign.
136. On belief, Defendants viewed each of Plaintiff's aforementioned protected activities as separate acts of defiance against Yarbrough.

COUNT I — 42 U.S.C. §1983 – FIRST AMENDMENT RETALIATION

(McDonald v. Cook County Clerk's Office)

137. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference the prior paragraphs of First Amended Complaint as if those paragraphs were fully set forth herein.
138. At all times relevant hereto, Defendants Cook County Clerk's Office was a final policymaker and at all times acted under color of law.
139. Defendants intentionally subjected McDonald to unequal and retaliatory treatment by denying her the ability to supervise, discipline, and manage her subordinates, writing phony disciplinary reports, sending her to mandatory EAP, and unlawfully terminating her, in violation of the First Amendment and treating her in an overall disparate manner.
140. Defendant CCSO created a policy, practice, custom and took express acts that had the force and effect of official County policy to retaliate against McDonald when she engaged in protected activities when McDonald complained that the actions of Raymond created a hostile work environment in retaliation for reporting payroll irregularities to the OIG.
141. Defendants retaliated against McDonald in violation of her First Amendment rights when she was written up and ultimately fired after she reported what she believed to be improper actions by her supervisor and the management of payroll to the OIG. The Seventh Circuit has repeatedly held that "speech alleging government corruption and malfeasance is of public concern in its substance." Spiegla v. Hull, 371 F.3d 928, 937 (7th Cir. 2004) (collecting cases).

142. The reasons provided by the Defendants for the Plaintiff's termination were unfounded and merely a pretext. Through the actions of its officials, agents, and employees, the Defendants engaged in adverse actions against the Plaintiff that would likely deter a reasonable employee from reporting or supporting allegations of harassment or retaliation.

143. At all times, Defendant, by its officials, agents, and employees, was aware of each Plaintiff's protected activities and oppositional conduct based on the foregoing allegations.

144. The aforementioned acts of the Defendants were reckless, willful, wanton, malicious, oppressive, and in callous disregard and indifference to Plaintiff.

145. Due to the aforementioned policies implemented by the Defendant, Cook County Clerk's Office, the Plaintiff experienced considerable injury and harm resulting from the deprivation of her rights, as protected under the First Amendment. The inflicted damages upon the Plaintiff include, but are not limited to, loss of wages, loss of benefits, emotional distress, hindered career progression, pain and suffering, humiliation, and embarrassment.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays for judgment against Defendants in the form of (a) a finding that Defendant has injured Plaintiff in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; (b) All wages and benefits plaintiff would have received but for the First Amendment violations, including but not limited to back pay, front pay, pre-judgment interest, and reinstatement into his position; (c) Compensatory damages in an amount to be determined at trial to compensate Plaintiff for the humiliation, anguish, and emotional distress caused by defendants' conduct; (d) A permanent injunction enjoining defendants from engaging in the practices complained of herein; (e) A permanent injunction requiring that defendants adopt employment practices and policies in accord with and in conformity to the requirements of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; and (f) A declaratory judgment that Defendants' actions violate 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

COUNT II – TITLE VII VIOLATION, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e(3)(a) BASED ON AGE
(McDonald v. Cook County Clerk's Office)

146. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference the prior paragraphs of First Amended Complaint as if those paragraphs were fully set forth herein.
147. Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office was at all times relevant has employed 20 or more employees within Illinois during 20 or more calendar weeks within the current and preceding relevant calendar years, and, therefore, is an employer within the meaning of ADEA.
148. At all times relevant, McDonald has been an employee within the meaning of the ADEA.
149. Plaintiff 50 years old at the time of the aforementioned adverse actions.
150. The Defendant's reasons for the adverse action were pretextual and not based on Plaintiff's job performance or qualifications and relied on her age in so doing.
151. Younger employees who were similarly situated to Plaintiff, but under the age of 40, were not subjected to the same adverse actions as the Plaintiff.
152. Plaintiff escalated her complaints of Raymond's ageist behavior to various supervisors at the Defendant Clerk's Office who did nothing whatsoever to address it, including supervisors Baker, Raymond, Kozlov, Giles, and Yarbrough.
153. Baker, Raymond, Kozlov, Giles, and Yarbrough constituted bona fide supervisors of McDonald because they were at all times empowered to take tangible employment actions against Plaintiff, at least she had authority to discipline, fire, and reassign employment responsibilities.
154. At no time did Defendant Clerk's Office investigate Plaintiff's complaints of age discrimination, much less do so thoroughly and promptly.

155. Raymond's age discriminatory animus is evidenced by the close proximity in time between her age-based cajoling of Plaintiff in August 2020 and the beginning of her pretextual write-ups.

156. As a direct and proximate result of Raymond's age-based discriminatory conduct, McDonald was demeaned, harassed, written-up for pretextual reasons, arbitrarily referred to EAP, and ultimately terminated.

157. Various employees at the Defendant Clerk's Office knowledge and acquiescence of such discrimination, McDonald has suffered damages, including job loss, loss of pay and benefits, compensatory losses in the form of emotional distress, outrage, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, mental anguish, and pain and suffering.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff, YOLANDA MCDONALD, respectfully requests that this Court enter judgment in their favor and against Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office, and order Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office to pay to Plaintiff all benefits that she would have received but for its discrimination, including pre-judgment interest, lost pay, compensatory damages in an amount to be determined at trial, damages for actual emotional distress caused by the Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office's actions and omissions, an award of reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and litigation expenses as allowed by law; and, such other relief as this Court may deem just or equitable.

COUNT III – TITLE VII VIOLATION, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e(3)(a) - RETALIATION
(McDonald v. Cook County Clerk's Office)

158. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference the prior paragraphs of this First Amended Complaint as if those paragraphs were fully set forth herein.

159. At all times relevant, Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office has been an Employer within the meaning of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. 2000e, et seq., in that it has been in an industry affecting commerce employing fifteen or more employees for each working day for each of twenty or more calendar weeks in the year prior to this Amended Complaint being filed.

160. At all times relevant, McDonald has been an employee within the meaning of Title VII.

161. At all times relevant, McDonald engaged in conduct protected by Title VII, including, but not limited to, exercising her right to complain of payroll discrepancies to the Cook County OIG under the First Amendment when they terminated her employment after she made complaints questioning the payroll practices of her supervisors to the OIG and participated in investigations and audits relating to potential payroll issues with the OIG.

162. McDonald has suffered a severe and a pervasive hostile work environment by the actions stated in the other paragraphs of this Amended Complaint, including being written up twice based on trumped-up, false, and selectively targeted allegations, being arbitrarily referred to EAP, failing to meaningfully investigate her allegations about questionable payroll practices, and ultimately terminating her.

163. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' unlawful actions, McDonald has suffered economic and non-economic damages, including lost pay, benefits, promotional opportunities, reputational damage, emotional distress, and general compensatory damages, all as a result of Defendant CCSO's unlawful actions.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff, YOLANDA MCDONALD, respectfully requests that this Court enter judgment in their favor and against Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office in an amount to be proved at trial, including for lost pay and benefits, compensatory damages up to and including $300,000, for emotional distress and reputation harms, and order Defendant Cook County Clerk's Office to reinstate McDonald to her position and benefits with full make-whole relief, and for all such other relief to which she is entitled and such other relief as this Court may deem just or equitable.

COUNT IV – IHRA CIVIL RIGHTS VIOLATION (AGE AND RETALIATION)

(McDonald v. Cook County Clerk's Office)

164. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference the prior paragraphs of First Amended Complaint as if those paragraphs were fully set forth herein.

169. At all times, Raymond was motivated by discriminatory animus based on Plaintiff's age.

170. Raymond's age discriminatory animus is evidenced by the close proximity in time between her age-based cajoling of Plaintiff and issuing her phony write-ups, referral to EAP, and ultimately terminating her.

171. Defendant Clerk's Office did not have a legitimate, non-discriminatory reason for terminating McDonald, and it did not rely on a reasonable, lawful factor in so doing.

172. As a result of Defendant Cook County's conduct, via its employees, McDonald has suffered damages including job loss, loss of pay and benefits, compensatory losses in the form of emotional distress, outrage, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, mental anguish, and pain and suffering.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff requests that this Court enter judgment in her favor, and against Defendant Clerk, and enter and order all appropriate relief, to include back pay and back benefits as allowed by law, compensatory damages in an amount up to and including $1.5 million dollars, make whole relief for all losses resulting from the unlawful discrimination, injunctive relief requiring Defendants to cease and desist from violating the age discrimination provisions of the IHRA, reasonable attorneys' fees and litigation costs, pre-judgment interest, and all other available and appropriate relief.

175. When Defendants subjected Plaintiff to the various materially adverse employment actions, they were aware that she had reported this misconduct. See Spalding v. City of Chicago, 186 F. Supp. 3d 884, 918 (N.D. Ill. 2016).
176. After Plaintiff complained, she alleges that Defendants retaliated against her by the actions as described herein, including: harassing and demeaning her, stripping away her supervisory duties, subjecting her to trumped-up write-ups, arbitrarily referring her to a mandatory EAP, and ultimately terminating her, which all constitute materially adverse employment actions that altered the terms and conditions of his employment.

177. McDonald had reasonable cause to believe that the information disclosed was a violation of state or federal law, rule or regulation including mismanagement of public funds, payroll irregularities, and covering up time theft.

178. Defendants were prohibited from retaliating against Plaintiff for reporting clear mandates of public policy, such as enforcing state and federal civil rights statutes and laws and the policy of furthering the investigation of a hostile work environment.

179. Each Defendant made, took part in, assisted in, and/or participated in the decision to retaliate against Plaintiff.

180. Plaintiff's termination was done in retaliation for her protected disclosures to the OIG.

181. McDonald was subjected to retaliation in violation of rights guaranteed to her by the Illinois Whistleblower Act, 740 ILCS § 174/15, and she has suffered substantial losses including job loss, salary and benefits losses, fringe benefits losses, emotional distress and mental pain and suffering, and loss of a career in law enforcement.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff, Yolanda McDonald, requests that this Court enter judgment in her favor and against Defendants in an amount to be proved at trial, including (1) reinstatement with the same seniority status that Plaintiff would have had, but for the termination; (2) back pay, with interest; and (3) compensation for any damages, including litigation costs and reasonable attorney's fees." 740 ILCS 174/30.
